BOTANICAL
— ART —

F. Bruce Sampson

This first ever anthology of early botanical paintings and drawings of New Zealand native plants covers the period from 1769 to 1914.

The plates, some of which are reproduced for the first time, demonstrate a range of printing techniques. They embody all the elegance, attention to detail and sensitive use of colour and shading that are features of the very best botanical illustration.

WOMEN IN HISTORY

Edited by Barbara Brookes, Charlotte Macdonald and Margaret Tennant

The role of women in our past is often described as 'the hidden history'. These essays set out to uncover some of that history, looking at sexuality and prostitution in nineteenth century New Zealand, at education, childbirth and birth control, feminism and welfare provisions for women. Together they make a significant contribution to an exciting new field of research. $21.95 paperback $38.50 hardback

A DESTINY APART

Keith Sinclair

The latest book from leading historian Keith Sinclair looks at New Zealand history from an unusual perspective: how and why did we develop a sense of national identity? From the first ideas of nationhood in settler society to formative experiences in the fields of sport and war, Sinclair follows the thread of emerging identity. $25.00 paperback $35.00 hardback

VIETNAM: ANATOMY OF A WAR 1940-1975

Gabriel Kolko

In this major history, world-renowned scholar Gabriel Kolko brilliantly depicts the dramatic social and political changes which fuelled the Vietnamese revolution. $65.95 hardback

THE ORIGINS OF THE SECOND WORLD WAR RECONSIDERED

Edited by Gordon Martel

When A. J. P. Taylor's classic work The Origins of the Second World War appeared in 1961 it created a controversy which still rages today. This new book of essays, written by leading experts on international relations between the wars, is designed to explain the present state of argument. $82.50 hardback
