New Zealanders at Home

A Cultural History of Domestic Interiors 1814–1914

Anna Petersen

Contemporary photographs, drawings and paintings take the reader from the interior of a Maori whare, through the homes of missionaries and settlers, to a bungalow in an early twentieth-century suburb. Introduction and supporting text.

$49.95, ISBN 1 877276 14 6, 176 pp

History of New Zealand and Its Inhabitants

Dom Felice Vaggioli, translated by John Crockett

The author wrote and published this book in Parma in 1896, after serving as one of New Zealand's first Benedictine priests in the 1880s. Critical of British colonisation and sympathetic to Maori. This is its first translation into English.

$49.95, ISBN 1 877133 52 3, 368 pp

A Deserter's Adventures: The Autobiography of Dom Felice Vaggioli

Translated by John Crockett

A frank account of life as a missionary priest, and a unique perspective on New Zealand in the 1880s. Also the hero of his own story – always entertaining.

$49.95, ISBN 1 8772726 11 1, 304 pp

British Capitalism, Antipodean Labour: Working the New Zealand Waterfront, 1915–1951

Anna Green

New Zealand's wealth has come from trade with the rest of the world, usually by sea. Conflicting perspectives and goals of British shipping companies and local workers led to major labour disputes, explored by the author in a challenging study.
